INDEXER'S NOTE

This index has two parts: (i) subject index; and (ii) author index. Supplements are indexed within these two parts.

In the subject index, section headings appearing in the Journal and major subject headings are indicated by capitals. Subject headings are based on those in Medical Subject Headings 1977 compiled by the United States National Library of Medicine (DHEW publication no. (NIH) 77-265); allowances have been made for Australian usage. Cross references appear in lower case. Spelling follows the Oxford English Dictionary (various editions), Butterworths Medical Dictionary (second edition, London, 1978), and Australian convention as defined by Style Manual for Authors Editors and Printers (second edition, Australian Government Publishing Service, Canberra, 1976) and the Style Manual of THE MEDICAL JOURNAL OF AUSTRALIA.

The index is designed to show subject interrelations, thus—

Acupuncture (see AMA) ..... 679

indicates that there is a reference to Acupuncture under the heading Australian Medical Association. Major headings follow the following order: direct references in alphabetical order; interrelated (see) references in alphabetical order; and non-specific cross references in alphabetical order, thus—
